V1.1 - Fixed formatting of the FAQ, corrected numerous errors, made the guide nicer looking. Added Elemental Rune list. The Guide is technically done, unless I decide to add onto it and expand it further like how to recruit the 108 Stars, other then that this is pretty much complete.

v1.2 - Added Elemental Rune Combination Spells and a listing of contents containg a easy to find search index for easier navigation for the FAQ.

V1.3 - Reformated the Character Rune Affinity List and also corrected even more errors I found.

The innerent compatibility is based on 4 levels. 1 to 4 stars from here on referenced by a "*" symbol to represent each level of affinity.

- * - bad
-  - average
-  - good
- * - excellent

For example:

this is based on both characters have an identical MAG stat and equipped with the same elemental rune

Snowe who has a Lightning Rune Elemental Affinity of * and Jeane who has a Lightning Rune Elemental Affinity of ****

In the circumstances of both Jeane and Snowe both equiped with a Lightning Rune having both an identical MAG in the same battle both casting the same spells. Jeane will always do more damage because her Affinity with Lightning is higher then Snowe with a rating of * and thus Jeane is better suited for using Lightning Magic then Snowe simply because the affinity is naturally higher. The point of this is if you are going to equip a elemental magic rune on a character, thier MAG stat has some consideration on the power of the spell but it would not be worthwhile to equip a Earth rune on a character with * affinity with Earth, when he/she has * affinity for Fire. Then again multiple Rune slots are for diversity ofcourse.

Also not only does a higher affinity increase the attack/healing power of the spell, with a higher affinity spells are more likely to be casted quicker without any delay before any enemy attackers get the chance to strike first.

I tested this extensively by a cheat device and providing my characters with a infinite supply of "Stone of Magic" items, to alter thier statistics accordingly to make it so they all have identical MAG stats. Then used various Runes in same situations to provide concise evidence that a Affinity is present and has a factor on effects of the spells. Most of the time characters with level * Affinity compared to a level * Affinity would do cast thier spells
